Laura's Opinion about Playing Games

In my opinion, games can help people learn more easily for three reasons. First of all, when people play games they feel relaxed, leaving all their worries behind. Taking a short break by playing a game can refresh them, and help them move on. Secondly, games can improve our brain's performance. Winning a game requires one's full concentration, strategic planning ability, and fine motor skills. This means the more games people play, the smarter they will be. Last but not least, games can be educational and even directly related to certain subjects. People can therefore learn something new just by playing certain games. Take Angry Birds for example. It taught me what a parabola is. When my science teacher introduced parabolas in class, I completely understood what she said. Games definitely help me learn.
